Greetings!

As the sun shines brightly, we all want to take advantage of being out of the office as much as possible. But work still needs to get done and that means being able to access your files remotely.

You're probably aware of the big name providers: Dropbox, Amazon Cloud Drive, and Google Drive. With so many cloud storage options to choose from, how do you know which is current and secure?

On June 17, 2014, Code Spaces (a company that hosted application development work in Amazon Web Service's cloud on behalf of its customers) experienced a DDOS attack where traffic flooded the company's servers. It has been reported that a ransom was demanded by the perpetrator. When the money wasn't paid, the hackers deleted all of the company files.

Can you imagine ALL of your company files being compromised and potentially deleted?

If your business is hosted in the cloud or if you work with a vendor who hosts its backend operations in the cloud, this could happen to you. Fortunately, we have a solution for your cloud storage needs.

Our featured Cloud service is vSync. We are proud of that fact that vSync has 48-bit Blowfish encryption on-device and in-transit. What does that mean? Well, unlike the free cloud products out there, our system was built to protect sensitive documents. Be warned that some of those consumer drives do not encrypt stored data at all.

Our program makes it easier than ever to upload and organize all your files - documents, spreadsheets, presentations, images, audio and video files - in just a few clicks. With vSync, you define who can access and edit specific files and folders, giving you comprehensive control over your content. vSync delivers convenience, and nothing is more convenient than synchronizing files stored on multiple computers and accessing those files from any PC, smartphone, or tablet with Internet access.

Verus Group has the highest level of security for any cloud platform, ensuring that your sensitive documents (contracts, designs, client history) are safe from hacking and breaches.

So, go ahead and enjoy the summer weather. We're making it easier for you to work from the backyard deck or even from the beach and feel confident that your files are easily accessible and secure.
